- Two new documents published

    – Updated version of the reporting process

    – Code of Conduct Team formation

- RIPE Labs article summarising feedback

- Drop-in sessions at RIPE 85

- Updated set of documents after RIPE 85

Code of Conduct Feedback: Right to a defence

- Currently this is the first step in the assessment of a report:
  - "Contact subject of report to hear their side of the story"
- If the team does not believe a report warrants any further investigation or discussion, this might not be necessary
- Language will be clarified in the document

RIPE

Code of Conduct Feedback: Anonymity

- Anonymity of the reporter (optional)

  - Important to allow reports about community members in power

- Anonymity of the reported

  - Team will not disclose names publicly unless unavoidable

- Anonymous reports

  - Common practice in other communities

  - Might not carry the same weight

RIPE

Impartiality of the Code of Conduct Team

- It's all about trust

- Team will include members with a range of skills and expertise

- Integrity is important

- RIPE Chair will select team members

  - Based on community feedback

- Details how team members will be indemnified will be added

Code of Conduct: Next Steps

- Clarify the Code of Conduct team's duty to contact a reported party and hear their side of the story

- Clarify how serious reports will be handled

- Adjust the section regarding personal data

- Add text indemnifying team members

- Issue call for volunteers for the Code of Conduct team

RIPE NomCom Recommendations

RIPE Nominating Committee Recommendations

- RIPE NomCom's final report (ripe-762)

- Four recommendations to community:

  1. Document relationship between RIPE NCC and RIPE

  2. Document community consensus about remuneration of RIPE Chairs

  3. Updates to RIPE NomCom document (ripe-728)

  4. Updates to RIPE Chair Selection Process (ripe-727)

Updates to RIPE docs on NomCom
