SHORELINE STYLE

Words: Floean Smout

Whether you've been travelling to holiday homes or been stationary, it doesn't mean there aren't brighter days on the horizon. And who's stopping you from wearing a bikini or speedo around the casa? The one-piece will always be a style staple, but as summer kicks into high-gear, there are a number of swimwear trends coming to the forefront. Whether it's a 90s cowl neck, a stringy affair or, yes, even ribbed, here's a selection of our favourites for him, her, they, them and anyone else heading for sunnier climates.

PATER ET FILIUS

MORNING SEA STAR

This Swiss independent based in Zurich is renowned for its eco-conscious creations. Pater et Filius produce a range of men's swim shorts, beach trousers and resort accessories. What started as a foray into the world of boxer shorts quickly became a push towards using sustainable production and materials. The brand uses econyl-regenerated nylon in its super-chic range of menswear. The inspiration for their range of unique prints and patterns comes from the ocean's cacophony of sealife. Like Morning Sea Star, a flat-fronted, fitted pair of retro shorties for a classic 50s silhouette. These are made from ultra-fast-drying regenerated polyamides.

PATER ET FILIUS

BLACK IRIS

These fitted yacht bermudas feature a low waist cut, side slash-pocket, single-back pocket with zipper, adjustable snap-tabs at the waist, and special covered slide-and-snap closure at the waistband. No summer wardrobe would be complete without a standard block colour pair of swimmers. The body-hugging darts on the rear give a shapely cut and the quick-dry micro-mesh interior lining will have you dry on deck in no time. Also, all shorts come in a fetching monogrammed waterproof pouch that can be used to carry your phone, keys, wallet and sunglasses to the beach.

HEMINGSWORTH

CLIPPER WHITE SOLID

We first heard of luxury British menswear brand Hemingsworth on the Pitti Uomo 96 olive vine. Founder Matt and creative director Henry wanted to create the most luxurious pair of shorts that could be worn all day whether travelling or relaxing without compromising on style, fit or comfort. The result was the Clipper. Inspired by seeing the crisp white sheets of canvas hauled into the rigging by sailing ships on the Cap d'Antibes, these shorts are impeccably crafted and exquisitely designed. They feature a sliding side bar adjuster buckle, Tahitian, Mother of Pearl buttons, a tailored six-piece waistband and are resistant to chlorine, salt water and fading from sunlight.
